was impossible to get 'Squire Martin over the 'phone, and finally a messenger was sent to him, asking him to come to the sheds or at least to the courthouse. He declined to come to the sheds, as requested, and the messenger didn't remember what he said about the courthouse proposition. Thereupon a special car was run out, and a squad of soldiers was detailed to accompany Farley and Mr. tailed to accompany Farley and Mr. Murray M. McGuire, counsel for the company, in their search for the magistrate. A speedy trip was made to the courthouse, but it was there stated that Squire Martin had gone to Giendale and could not be reached at all.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
GREENSBORO, N. C., July S.—The stockholders and board of directors of the North Carolina Railroad Company held the regular annual meeting here to-day. The business was entirely routine, the reports of the finance committee and of the secretary and treasurer being received and approved.

The report of the experts appointed to examine the railroad, which extends from Goldsboro to Charlotte, shows that the terms of the lease by the State to the Southern Railway Company have been more than compiled with, and that the main line shows considerable improvement since the last inspection, in 1901. could not be reached at all. As a last resort, 'Squire Lewis was waked up and he announced himself ready to grant the much-desired ball. The car went on back up to the West End, where the necessary proceedings were conducted, and thus the case ended for the evening, or, rather, he early morning. The Trial Yesterday.

The Trial Yesterday.

Yesterdny afternoon at 6 o'clock Farley appeared before 'Squire Martin for trial on the two warrants. In view of the fact that at this time factory folk and others employed in the East End are just coming home, an effort was made to get another hour for the trial, but without effect. Hence the squad of but without effect. Hence the squad of soldiers.

main line shows considerable improve-ment since the last inspection, in 1991. The report contains a long list of bet-terments in the way of bridges, trestles, buildings, side tracks, ties, rails, bal-lest, grading, car equipment, culverts, cealing and water stations. The finance committee reported a cash balance on hand June 1st, 1993, of $211.77, which but without effect. Hence the squad of soldiers.

One of the complainants, Roberts, was not present at all. The other, Cronogue, asked for a postponement until to-day, declaring that he had not been able to get his witnesses together, and that some of them had been "spirited away" by the company. 'Squire Martin promptly granted the request. Captain Guigon, for the defense, made strenuous objection, stating that after the remarkable arrest made in the dead of the night on a trivial charge, and the other peculiar circumstances attending this arrest, he thought it strange that the Commonwealth should ask for a postponement. He thought it unfair to the defendant, who was present and ready to be tried, to have to submit to such interruptions of the business in which he is engaged. The objections were of no avail. 'Squire Martin granted the continuance and get the case for 11 o'clock to-day. Mr. McGuire, one of the counsel for the company, arose to make a statement, but he stopped in the middle of the first sentence and awaited the pleasure of the presiding officer, who chopped him off by asking Cronogue to go on with the list of witnesses he was calling out. When Mr. Martin was finally at leisure the attorney proceeded to ask that the defense be considered somewhat in the matter, and that the postponement, if it had to be made, be extended to a week or more, at least until next Wednesday. The attorneys for the company, he said, had engagements for every hour of the day up to that time. 'Squire Martin refused to budge from his decision, and he proceeded to call the witnesses for the Commonwealth before him that he might recognize them for their appearance at 11 o'clock to-day. "If your Honor please," said Mr. McGuire, "It is quite impossible—"

"Come around, Mr. Farley, and be recognized," called out the justice.

At this point Captain Guigon arose. He stated that at 11 o'clock to-day Farley is to be tried before 'Squire Lewis on another warrant, and that no law on earth could compel a man to be in two places at the The Southern's bridge over Haw River, at Benaja, a station between here arill Danville, was burned last night, after 25, for Atlanta, had passed and before any of the north bound night trains reached here. No. 12, north bound, waited at the brink of the river, while 35 stopped at Rudd. By 9 o'clock to-day the bridge had been rebuilt and traffic resumed. A work train was sent from here at 1 o'clock this morning, and another from Danville, to replace the bridge. atructure, cost $10,000, and was insured for $5,000.

Messrs. Magruder & Joyce, railroad contractors, of Danville, will, in the course of a few days, begin the grading of the second track between Greensboro and Pomona, which is a division of the Southern Railway's new system of sectional double tracking of its line.

The Legislature falling to make an appropriation for the North Carolina exhibit at St. Louis, the business men of the State, at the suggestion of Governor Aycock, have determined to raise $50,000 for that purpose. Messrs. Hugh G Chatham and F. B. Arendall, are in the city soliciting subscriptions for that purpose. While they are not given to a discussion of the matter so plainly, it is easy to see that the officials of the company regard the warrants served at a late hour at night and the great difficulty to secure bail as a plot of some sort to get the chief of the strike-breakers into hot water, or at least to make him spend the night in jail. Farley declares that he has not struck any of the strike-breakers, and struck any of the strike-breakers, and that he has not assaulted any of them
